

In 2005, on one of our medical mission trips to St. Vincent, we met a six-year-old boy named Devin Richards who was born with deformed legs and unable to walk. Through the help of Dr. David Keen, medical director of CAMEO, he arranged surgery for Devin at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital. Dr. Donald Dewey performed the surgery and he was fitted with prosthetic legs made by Dr. Goeff Hennen of Hanger, Inc.

Devin left for home to St. Vincent using a walker and was able to take his first steps at seven years old in his first pair of Nike shoes. It was Devin's long time dream to wear a pair of Nikes.

If you would like to help CAMEO on future endeavors such as these, please send your donations to the address on our contact page. We appreciate any support you can give.

Devin before surgery

Close-up of Devin's legs

Doctor with Devin just prior to surgery

Clowning around in therapy

Devin wearing his Nike's to go back home